

Elko County
Public Lands Policy Plan

2008

2008 Elko County Public Lands Policy Plan.

Table of Contents.

1. Places of Interest
2. Facts and Figures
3. What next?
4. Conclusions

Places of Interest

There are many great places of interest to visit in Elko County. You simply have to keep your eyes and ears wide open.

There are mountains and valleys, wide open fields of golden flowers and fresh smelling grasses for the lover of nature and all things beautiful on this earth. For the water lover, there are streams, rivers and lakes to attract the boater, fisherman and wafer alike.

Don't miss the real attractions as they present themselves to you.

Facts and Figures

The facts speak for themselves. Figures come and go but generally remain constant where all things that are equal to the same thing are equal to their opposites.

1. There are more now than there were then
2. As now and then are relative, so are the two when combined with each other
3. Less than optimal can never be greater than minimal
4. If it takes a week to walk a fortnight, how many apples in a barrel of grapes?

Sometimes you simply have to go with the flow to get the gist of the matter.

What Next?

What comes next is really up to the visitor. Of course, next comes immediately after the previous, however you care to look at it. So the fact of the matter is that we are where we are thanks to the juxtaposition of the various aspects of this document.

It will all make more sense as you come to gain a greater understanding of the very fundamentals of this exciting undertaking.

Conclusions

One can only conclude that this has been a hugely worthwhile undertaking and while many will gain a greater level of understanding of the many intricacies of the view of the whole model, others will benefit nonetheless.

Thank you for reading this document. We trust it has been received in the manner to which it was designed.